

A Correspondent, who was present at Flat Rock, at the meeting of the Stockholders in the Charleston and Cincinnati Rail Road Company, thus writes to us— I heard much conversation there on the subject of the new financial project of the Government, commonly called the 'Treasury system. It was condemned with a remarkable degree of unanimity. I heard no one attempt to defend it on principle.— Col———and one other gentleman from South Carolina, whose name I forget, said they would prefer it to the Pet Bank system, but did not believe in it altogether.— 'The others were unequivocal in their opinions, and seemed to denounce the plan with apprehension and disgust. I learn from several leading gentlemen of S. C. that Governor McDuffie pronounces it a wretched expedient. Judge Clayton says it will not take in Georgia. You may rely on the correctness of this information, and use it as you please.'

The Augusta Sentinel informs us that the Commercial Convention, which sat near the same time, at that place, was nearly, if not quite, as unanimous in the same way of thinking. The Reformer and the Mercury have answered too soon for the GREAT WHIG PARTY OF THE SOUTH.— The Southern Whigs seem to think that the gold and silver currency is no less a 'Humbug' in the nursing of Mr. Calhoun, than it was when in charge of its legitimate father Mr. Benton!
